A PWTAG master class in pool water quality

This year's PWTAG conference will focus on pool water excellence – a master class on best practice – but with a unique extra. November's final session will be devoted to the use of temporary pools; and educational establishments will be able to take part online.

The final session will include:

- the use of temporary pools
- installation
- water treatment
- monitoring and how to manage the risk of infection

This session will feature the views of Swim England, operators and others on the successes and challenges. Participants can join over the internet for £40.
